

IRBC
THE INSTITUTE FOR REFORMED
BIBLICAL COUNSELING

Dear Church,

At the Institute for Reformed Biblical Counseling (IRBC), it is our vision to see pastors, elders, and church members grow in pastoral care and discipleship. To achieve this goal, one of our main focuses is on teaching and training biblical counseling principles and practices from a reformed perspective. We have developed a basic training course, suitable for both ministers and members, to accomplish this mission.

Our basic training course collaborates with churches and institutions nationwide that are willing to provide a meeting space for our students. This class can be offered as an education opportunity in your congregation (such as a weekly Bible study). Host churches are expected to meet the following requirements:

- Host is a confessional Continental Reformed, Presbyterian, or Reformed Baptist congregation
- Host exemplifies a history of commitment to orthodox theology and biblical Christian discipleship
- Have access to a regular meeting space for a small to medium-sized gathering (10-30 people)
- Provide an organized and welcoming environment for monthly meetings (Example time: 7-9:30 PM)
- Stable and reliable internet access at meeting facility
- A class coordinator (mature male church member, pastor, elder) who can organize meetings, lead group discussions, and answer questions for students about the program (must hold to Reformed convictions concerning theology and biblical counseling). Class coordinators receive free tuition for the course as a benefit for managing the class and leading group discussions.

We would love to partner with your congregation to support your discipleship ministry. If you are interested in hosting a class, please send us an email at admin@reformedcounseling.org or submit an interest form on our website at reformedcounseling.org/training/#host-class.

Dr. Jared Poulton
Executive Director